

Privacy Policy

Information is not openly available to others

Michele Leembruggen of michleem@bigpond.com guarantees that your personal details, financial and contact information, will never be divulged to/sold to any third party, and such information is only collected when you interact directly. For example, when you sign up to an e-mail list or purchase a service/product.

Legal exceptions may apply

Information is only divulged if there is a specific requirement under law. The site complies with privacy and confidentiality legislation that is applicable in Australia and for the state Michele Leembruggen resides in (Victoria). This legislation is similar to that applying in other countries.

Secure storage of your details

Your data is stored securely and complies with standard international protection requirements (i.e., in alignment with General Data Protection Requirements – GDPR).

The use of cookies

Cookies are used to assist with the operation of this site and your access to features etc. The cookie popup (lower right), will permit you to determine whether or not to allow cookies. We recommend you accept cookies to enjoy a smooth visit to the site.

Third party services

Just as Michele Leembruggen of michleem@bigpond.com promises not to utilise or sell your private information, the same is expected of all third parties who provide support services to this site. Please note, Michele Leembruggen may utilise third parties from time to time to support the operation of the site, and no third party is approved/authorised to forward, sell, or retain, any personal or financial information you may share through the site.